

WILL GOOGLE ANNOUNCE THE DEVELOPMENT OF A SMARTWATCH
 AT OR BEFORE THE GOOGLE I/O 2014 CONFERENCE?

44%
 SAY NO

56%
 SAY YES

BACKGROUND

As the 2014 Google I/O conference nears, the spotlight is on the tech giant to see if they officially throw their hat into the smartwatch ring. With Google’s recent announcement of the Android Wear software, it seems it’s only a matter of time before they jump on the wearables bandwagon. But at SciCast, we want to know if the development of a smartwatch will be announced at or before Google I/O on June 25 and 26.

NUMBER OF PARTICIPANTS

46

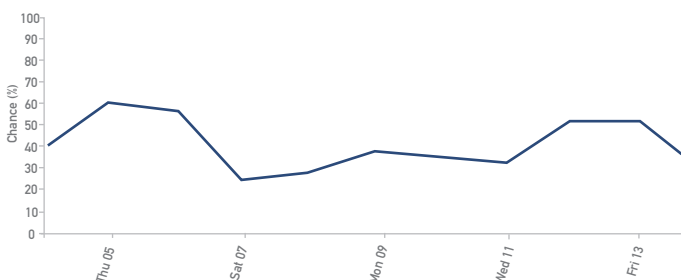

NUMBER OF FORECASTS

120

DAYS OF ACTIVITY

16

HOW HAS THIS QUESTION TRENDED?

Trend data is updated multiple times per day. The last value on the graph is always the current forecast for that answer.

RELATED QUESTIONS

SciCast’s combinatorial nature allows us to take a user’s forecast for this question and use it to influence the outcome of related questions, such as:

1. Will the Apple iWatch be commercially available by the end of September 2014?
2. Will wearable technology increase the susceptibility of malware attacks on consumer devices in 2014?

FORECASTING REINVENTED

SciCast is a science and technology prediction community. It’s based upon the idea that an informed and diverse group can more accurately predict the outcome of future events than one individual expert. SciCast is free, fun and built just for lovers of and professionals in science and technology fields.